Delay Is Seen For Geneva Mideast Talks

By Henry Tanner

CAIRO, June 10 (NYT).-Egypt and the United States are in agreement on seeking a delay in the next round of the Geneva peace conference on the Middle East at least until the end of September or early October, according to high-placed sources.

The American-Egyptian desire for delay is shared by Israel but opposed by Syria and the Soviet Union, both of which, for different reasons, continue to press for an early-summer meeting, the sources said.

The Syrians are understood to be eager to exploit the momentum created by the recent Israeli-Syrian troop-disengagement agreement in the Golan Heights. The Russians, who have been almost entirely frozen out of the regional diplomatic processes in the last several mouths, are impatient to go to Geneva in an active role as co-chairman of the conference with the United

A Topic for Nixon

The date and the terms of reference of the Geneva conference will be one of the principal subjects that Arab and Israeli leaders will raise with President Nixon, whose Middle East tour begins in Cairo on Wednesday.

The Americans and Egyptians are convinced that several months of intensive behind-thescenes consultation are needed to prepare the ground for the Geneva conference and save it from nitimate failure. The higgest and most immediate obstacle to the conference is that Israel and the majority of Arab atates take seemingly irreconcilable positions on the issue of Palestine. The two sides have committed themselves publicly. Israel declared yesterday that

The police kept everyone without an official pass away from the airport. About 150 middleaged persons gathered under umbrelles outside—some to praise Mr. Nixon, some just out of curiosity.

Aides said Mr. Nixon "worked like hell" during the flight. Gen. Alexander Halg. White House chief of staff, said the President pored over his briefing papers on the flight "to prepare himself intensively for the rapid-fire discussions" during his tour of the Arah world and Israel.

Gen. Haig said that the stopover in Salzburg would give Mr. Nixon a chance "to get his clock caught up" and also to have a substantive meeting with Mr.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said that in a meeting tomorrow morning, the two leaders will have a chance to discuss "East-West relations." Mr. Kreisky recently visited Moscow.

Seoul Is Confused and Tense Under Strict Curbs by Park

By Richard Halloran

SEOUL, June 10 (NYT).-An American helicopter has been shot down over Seoul by nervous South Korean gunners in an action that is taken here as underscoring the jumpy and confused mood of the city.

U.S. officials said the helicopter, on a routine orientation flight, flew into the vicinity of the restricted airspace over the Blue House. President Chung Hee Park's executive mansion. Why the Korcans fired oo a U.S. helicopter when it was at shout 1.000 feet and its markings were clearly visible was not known, except that the gunners have standing orders to shoot at anything

U.S. officials said privately that exactly what happened might never be known since they had gotten conflicting versions from Koreans and Americans. There was a similar experience not long ago, when the Koreans fired at aircraft said at first to be American and later to be unidentified. The episodes indicate two things. The people are tense, evidently because Mr. Park has clamped down ao hard on every aspect He has stopped most political activity, regulated the economy, unposed severe security precautions and specified the limits on funeral costs and the length of men's hair and women's skirts.

And secondly, no one really knows what is going on. The government operates in tight secrecy and gives little information to the people through a strictly censored press. There is plenty of gossip, but it is virtually impossible to sift fact from rumor. Government spokesmen are often contradictory.

At the center of all this is the austere and aloof President, a former general who has steadily gathered power and crushed opposition by clapping into jail those who call for a measure of freedom. The President and his backers maintain that stringent discipline is needed to overcome challenges from North Korea and to make economic progress.

The most severe of the President's actions came on April 3. when be decreed that dissent could be punished with death. Under powers given him when he had the constitution revised in 1972, he ruled that dissenters could be arrested without warrant and tried by secret court-martial.

The first trials under that decree are expected shortly, 52 Koreans and two Japanese having been indicted, among them scholars, farmers, businessmen, laborers and persons active in religious affairs. About 200 are expected to be tried later.

The decree, known as Emergency Measure No. 4, was aimed at the National Democratio League of Students and Youth, but it went on to condemn any dissent, although dissent was vaguely defined.

The decree, which prohibits any association with the youth league, goes on to say that "it shall be prohibited for any person to advocate, instigate or propagate any act or acts" that are forbidden to the league or to conduct "individual or collective activities such as assembly, demonstration, protest or sitdown in or around academic institu-

The real impact of Mr. Park's crackdown on his adversaries is more felt than seen. There is ample evidence that his government has stunned the nation with its restrictions, especially the recent threat of the death penalty.

The opposition parties have been reduced to making mild demands-which are ignored-to keep up the facade of parliamentary politics. Mr. Park has warned opposition politicians to refrain from indiscreet remarks.

Dairy Donors to Nixon Have Big War Chest

By William Robbins

WASHINGTON, June 10 (NYT).

The three large dairy cooperstives whose heavy contributions to President Nixon's re-election campaign are under scritiny in the House Judiciary Committee have a political war chest of more than $2 million for the congressional campaigns this year, according to reports on file here.

The three-Associated Milk Producers, Inc., Dairymen, Inc., and Mid-America Dairymen, Inc.—gave about $700,000 in Mr. Nixon's behalf before Election Day in 1972. Most of it was contributed after the President overruled his secretary of agriculture in 1971 and ordered an increase in milk-price supports,

Allegations of a link between the contributions and the pricesupport order are among the matters that the Judiciary Committee is examining in connection with its impeachment inquiry. Among the contributions to politicians thus far this year, the biggest share has gone to members

"Whatever its promise may be for the future," wrote Judge Carl McGowan for the court last week. "voiceprint identification is not sufficiently accepted by the scientific community as a whole to form a basis for a jury's determination of guilt or innocence."

The opinion is binding only on federal courts in Washington, but as the first federal appellate ruling on the subject, it can be expected to carry "a good deal of weight" with other federal and state courts, according to John Terry jr., chief of the U.S. Attorney's Appellate Division

Visual Analysis

A voiceprint is an electronic process which displays in a pattern of lines for visual analysis the sounds of an individual's The technique, pioneered 40 years ago, first was used as trial evidence in 1966.

The law on voiceprints varies from state to state. Courts in Florida and Minnesota now admit voiceprints, but the New Jersey Supreme Court has ruled them inadmissible.

"There'a a general state of indecision as to its value and use."
Robert Miller, chief of the FBI's Radio Engineering Section, said. "We use it for investigative guid-We've never used it [as evidence] because we've never been satisfied we could make a positive identification with it."

In a major, federally funded study of voiceprinte, the Michigan state police concluded in 1970 that so-called "spectograms" are at the least a useful investigative tool. The U.S Appeals Court decision involved the cases of two men tried on charges arising from the shooting of a Washing-ton policeman April 9, 1971. Evidence included voiceprints of the defendants, one of whom was then identified as having made an anonymous call to police before the sbooting. Responding to the "pobceman in trouble" call, an officer went to a store in northeast Washington where he was shot by two men he had arrested 11 days earlier for disorderly conduct.

with Saudi Arabia, the President of the United States left for a tour of the Middle East yesterday. Even with full recognition of the domestic political pressures which undoubtedly made President Nixon so eager to selze this moment, a presidential visit to Israel and four Arah countries holds genuine and dramatic importance across the sweep of American foreign policy.

Like Mr. Nixon's earlier visit to the People's Republic of China, the fact that the trip is taking place at all far oversbadows any particular results that could ensue. Not since 1943 has an American president found it suitable-or possible-to make a personal appearance in the Middle East.

Anyone who has stood in an Arab crowd during the past decade or so, heering barangues against "American imperialism" from Arah nationalists, can appreciate the impact now of those same crowds cheering the American bead of state and promises of Arab-American friendship. The new U.S. ambassador to Egypt—the first after nearly seven years of diplomatic estrangementspoke recently of a "Copernican change" in Egyptlan-American relations.

Contrary to the instincts of many who have been nervous observers of the Arab-Israeli confrontation all these years, this change does not appear to have come about from any weakening of U.S. support for the survival and security of Israel. In her last statement in office, Premier Golda Meir declared confidently that "the consistent aid of the United States to Israel has been assured for the future." Thanks to the nego-

Bolstered by a sweeping new agreement tiating skill of Secretary of State Kissinger, the Nixon administration seems to have defied the old diplomatic imperative that no power coold receive the friendship of both Israel and the Arabs at the same time.

How long this era of tentative good feeling can be maintained is, of course, open to question. Much will depend on the degree of restraint shown by President Nixon this week in not allowing Egyptian and other Arab expectations to become overinflated.

Economic and technological cooperation between the United States and Arab states can be an influence for peaceful development across the Middle East; any suggestion that this country could become a major new source of armaments for the Arabs on Israel's borders would work counter to the peace prospects that have now been painstakingly pried open.

By the same token, as a purely pragmatic proposition, any attempt to make President Nixon's visit or the American peacemaking efforts seem anti-Soviet in motivation would only trigger reprisals and setbacks. It would also sour the atmosphere for Mr. Nixon's subsequent and more substantive meetings in the Kremiin late this month.

President Nixon's course across the Middle East has no meaningful relevance to the political crisis in which he and his administration are now sinking, however much it may be manipulated for all-too-familiar image-building purposes. It marks, rather, a new diplomatic opening to a part of the world where the United States was not welcomed before. With caution, but full appreclation of its potential for reducing international tensions, this is a trip worth taking.

Defeating Troop Cuts

The decisive defeat of the Mansfield amendment requiring withdrawal of 125,000 American troops from overseas is a victory for common sense. The Senate vote, 30 years to the day after the American landing in Normandy that began the liberation of Nazioccupied Europe, was a vote for responsible American policy in the world, a vote against unilateral disengagement.

The American troops in Europe provide the crucial underpinning for that continent's military and political stability. They conatitute the chief link between West Europe's essentially non-nuclear defenses and the American nuclear deterrent. Without them, the Soviet Union's military prependerance, deployed only a few miles away, would quickly become political preponderance. Without moving a single soldler, Moscow's influence over events in a defenseless West Europe would multiply overnight.

The world's most potent industrial complex outside the United States, that is. West Europe, and the geographic area overseas most vital to American security would become almost as vulnerable to Soviet pressure as the government of Finland. Nuclear buildup by the West Europeans would be the only alternative to loss of independence.

The military balance that American forces assure in Central Europe is a precious asset that has kept the peace for three decades. It does not require that every one of the 300,000 American troops remain there forever. American force levels are already more than a third below those of the peak periods of the 1950s and 60s. The mutual force reduction talks in Vienna offer a possibility of further Soviet-American cutbacks that would maintain the bajance.

The bead of steam in the Congress behind the Mansfield amendment has stemmed primarily from balance-of-payments difficultles, which no longer exist, plus a nroisolationist trend, silmulated by a Vietnam involvement that has ended. The time was come to end the perennial debate over the Mansfield amendment. Not disengagement, but increased engagement of the United States in stabilizing Europe and the Atlantic community is the real challenge for the

Diplomatic Pas de Deux

The Soviet decision to grant exit visas to ballet stars Valery Panov and his wife, Galina, is a welcome concession to world opinion, clearly timed to ease this week's goodwill visit by the Bolshoi Ballet to London and President Nixon's forthcoming trip to Moscow. Soviet authorities rightly deduced that their shoddy treatment of this talented couple, which had attracted broad international concern and censure, could compromise their diplomatic objectives.

The shadow over Moscow's relations with free societies will remain, however, as long as the same fundamental freedom to emigrate continues to be denied to other, lesser known Soviet citizens. Even as the freeing of the Panovs was announced, another would-he emigre, physicist Alexander Voronel, was roughly arrested by Russian police. Ultimately the Kremlin must recognize that whenever it denies basic human rights to any of its people it diminishes itself in the eyes of free men everywhere and makes the road to détente more difficula.

Soviet Oppression

Could even Kafka do justice to the ingenious tactics of bureaucratic terror employed by the Soviet Union against Jewish and other dissenters? Eighteen Jewish scientists, dismissed from their jobs for applying quite legally for exit visas to Israel, have organized a scientific seminar and invited scientific colleagues from the West. Embarrassed by the widespread sympathy among Western scientists for this defiance. the Soviet authorities have put astonishing pressure on the organizers to cancel the seminar. First, they were conscripted into the army, then threatened with exile to a remote part of the Soviet Union if the seminar went ahead. Nor is this an isolated example of administrative tyranny against a background of "Leninist legality." Like the three-year oppression of the Panovs. now mercifully free to depart, it is the automatic result of even slight deviations from the Soviet norm.

There is only one hope of salvation, only one countervalling power to the burgaueracy-namely, the attention of caoricious. easily bored world opinion. NEW YORK.—Toree years ago this week The New York Times began printing the record of official arrogance, deception and blundering that came to be called the Pentagon papers. The Nixon administration went to court to try to stop it. Two weeks later, after much frantic legsl activity, the Supreme Court ruled out an injunction.

It was a famous victory for freedom of the press. Or was it? Have we-the courts, Congress, the press, the public-really learned the lesson of that case?

Looking back, one thing we can see clearly is the emptiness of gravely barm the national security. Those arguments were oo the same level of hysteria as the more recent one that the presidency would end if Richard Nixon had to comply with a subpoens. Three years later on it is certainly hard to think of any security damage from publication of the Pentagon papers.

Holders of Power

It was not the security of the country that was at stake, we know now; it was the security of the holders of power. President Nixon and Henry Kissinger felt themselves threatened. They responded with wiretaps, prosecutions, veogeance: paranoia ram-

In the years since the Pentagon papers broke upon our consciousness we should also have learned a good deal about the dangers of secrecy. It is not only Watergate. We have discovered among many other things that the United States secretly bombed a neutral country. Cambodia, and secretly used artificial rainmaking as a technique of war. Such surrepti-tious practices required lying and deception to be woven into the pattern of official life.

Have we learned anything from this depressing record? Certainly there is no sign that the executive branch has, not under this

In 1968, before Kissinger weot into the government, Daniel Elisberg warned him that secrecy was "a magic potion that turns ordinary human beings into arrogant, contemptuous menaces to democracy." If Kissinger was listening, he soon forgot.

LONDON.—Come: Let us see how well you know the British. The poet laureate has been accused by an earl of telling "downright lies" and by a mayor of being "thoroughly un-Christlan." The poet laureate, in turn, declares that some supposedly objective evidence relied upon hy the earl and the mayor is "unsympathetically hiased," and adds for good measure that he "suspects the temptations of the fleshpots." And the question, of course, is: What is all this about? Those who deduce high-level political maneuvering, call girl scandals, a deadly struggle be-tween the CIA and the KGB, or the imminent collapse of the British economy, have, I fear, failed ignominiously. The row is, of course, about a proposal to pull down a late-Victorian church in Chelses. The laureate, Sir John Betjeman, has for long been the leader of those who campaign to save from destruction tha architectural heritsge of the 19th century in Britain. "Private Eye," that the old and tried property speculators trick was being played with the courch in questions of the courch in the court of the cource of the cource of the cource of the cource of the course of th tion. The trick is to allow an architecturally important but un-economic building on a valuable site to decay beyond reasonable hope of repair, and then claim that the only thing to do is to pull it down and develop the area, thus making profits for the speculators. The claim was denied in an impressive, dignified and gentle rejoinder by the rector of the church, who invited the critics of the church's demolition to spend some time helping, say, to keep the gutters cleared so that further deterioration might be kept at bay. And the earl con-Cadogani and the mayor (of Cheisea) insist that the huge building is not only rulnously expensive to keep up, but vastly in excess of anything the tiny, dwindling congregation can possibly need. To which Sir John. Betjeman has retorted, in a pamphlet, that the church "is a great souring prayer," and that "to pull it down and replace it with a commercial building with some little 'boly room' as a sop to God is unthinkable." He also insists that congregations could be increased and funds raised to keep the church in being. Incidentally. Betjeman is not merely, in this matter, speaking as an architectural conservationist: He is also a devout Christian. So, incidentally, is the earl, who has been a churchwarden at Holy Trinity for many years. . Deadlock and angry words:

WASHINGTON — Contradicting Nixon administration claims that détente is relaxing repression in the Soviet Union the American ambassador in Moscow has privately cabled Washington that the KGB secret police has intensified harassment of Soviet citizens trying to contact the U.S.

In a May 23 "confidential" telegram to the State Department, Amhassador Walter Stoessel; revesled the new "pattern of intensifying monitoring and harassment of Soviet citizens" attempting to enter the embassy. "Judging from several recent incidents, Soviet security has recently become less tolerant of such contacts," Mr. Stoessel said. . Although recent U.S. Embassy protests to the Soviet Foreign Affairs Ministry have proven fruitless, the State Department is avoiding for now high-level pre-summit protests that might endanger détente. This attitude further angers critics of the Nixon-Kissinger foreign policy

At Air France we believe that a 1st class ticket ought to get you more than some extra space and a glass of champagne. So we make sure that when our service is called 1st class, it is 1st class.

You'll see what that means from the first moment you step on board. The special attention and faultless service of our crew will almost make your flight a mini-vacation in itself.

When it's mealtime you'll hardly believe you're on an airplane. A 1st class meal on any long-distance Air France flight is practically a banquet.

Your table is set with linen, silver, crystal and Limoges. Six courses. Each one prepared and served with all the care of a fine French restaurant.

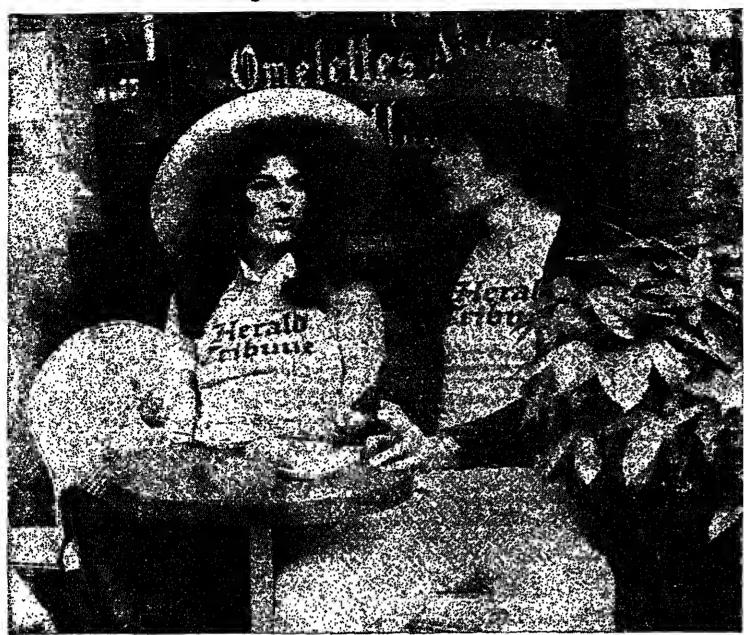

In fact, we've just inaugurated a new cuisine on all flights departing from Paris, created by the 14 great chefs of "la Grande Cuisine Française". To give your meals a variety and sophistication never before possible on an airplane.

And of course you have a wide selection of choice French wines and liqueurs from the Air France cellars.

If all this makes you think we're a little fanatic about our 1st class service, you're right. Chalk it up to our French pride in savoir-vivre.

Saigon Force In Drive for Red Positions

Last Held on Capital's North Defense Line

From Wire Disnaiches SAIGON, June 10 .- Government troops battled their way toward the two last Communistheld positions on Saigon's northern defense line today after fighting yesterday which left nearly 300 casualties on both sides.

Military sources said that the heaviest fighting occurred between the rubble of An Dien village, retaken by government troops last week, and "Position 82," both about 25 miles north of the capital.

The sources said that government pilots reported killing be-tween 125 and 156 Communist troops yesterday in bombing raids supporting the Saigon units advance toward Position 82.

Government casualties were five dead and 62 wounded, the Saigon command reported.

An Dien village, Position 32 and another position in the area were captured by Communist forces last month, posing a threat to the capital's northern defense line. The government immediately launched a drive to recapture them but so far has been able to retake only An Dien village, after fighting which left more 500 dead on both sides.

Fighting at Prek Lnong

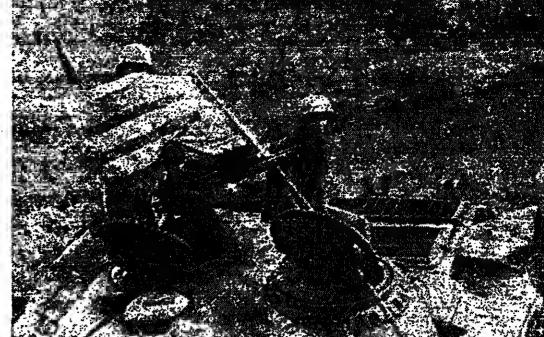

In Phnom Penh, the Cambodian military command reported fighting at Prek Luong, on the east bank of the Mekong River five miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The command said that its troops killed 12 Khmer Rouge insurgents and captured a number of weapons. Five government troops were wounded, it added.

Other fighting was reported in the isolated provincial capital of Kompong Seila, 85 miles southeast of the capital.

At the same time in Phnom Penh, Cambodian government leaders paid their last respects to two officials killed last week in a student-police confrontation. President Lon Nol posthumously decorated Minister of Education Kee Sankim and his deputy, Thach Chea, with National Defense Medals, calling them heroes who "sacrificed their lives for the nation."

Reliable sources said that Communist agents killed the two men, taking advantage of the confusion of a student demon-

SAIGON, June 10 (UPI) .-The Saigon command said today that since the cease-fire was declared on Jan. 28, 1973, at least $51,454 Vietnamese soldiers on both sides have been killed or wounded.

A spokesman said that 55.014 Communist soldiers have been killed. Although there is no official count of Communist wounded, commanders figure that three men are wounded for each man killed, which would mean 195,042 Communist wounded.

Government casualties since the armistice declaration. have been 17,722 killed and 73,676 wounded, the Saigon command reported.

IN THE AIRLINE BUSINESS, IT'S ENCOURAGING TO BE PRAISED.

"As every woman does, I like to be ible to choose. That's why I appreciate he fact that TWA offers me a choice of hree main courses in Economy. They give you all the attention and service you need, both on the ground and in he air."

Mrs Fiorella Negro, Proprietor, Art-Vis, Ball-point pens, Italy.

Tappreciate TWA's outstanding ground service. TWA is unmatched in helping you resolve problems and get through some of the difficult formalities one encounters from time to time.

And everything is done so courteously."

Mr. Guy-Philippe Demory, Director General, Hearty Petrochem, France.

"I particularly like the possibility of using the Ambassador Service seat that can be converted into a sidetable, especially on a long flight. I will continue to fly TWA every time I can. The service is good, and flights are usually on time."

Frederic de Sibert, Director, Europe, Sikorsky Helicopter Marketing, France.

"I frequently have to go to various cities in the U.S. And TWA is the most comfortable system I have found not only to go to these places directly, but also to enjoy on each trip the rest I need to put my affairs in order."

Mr. José Maria Maso, President, Motormaso-Evinrude, Spain.

"I spend my life coming and going from one place to another. Sometimes I even have to be in two different cities on the same day. That's why I appreciate in all its value the famous punctuality of TWA in keeping to its schedules."

> Mr. Carlos Vento Jiménez-Carles, Director General, Servicar, S.A., Spain.

"I always enjoy my flight with TWA. But what I like best are the comfortable seats. And it's not only me, my family enjoys them, too. They make our flight so comfortable. I must also say that formalities after landing are completed in the minimum time."

Mr. James G. Phillips,
Regional Director,
American Life Insurance Company,
Greece.

"Some years I make as many as 18 round trips to the United States and I have found pretty consistently that TWA has the best balance of attention on the ground and service in the air.

They make it easier to get what I want on the ground, and they're very good in the air."

Mr. J. P. Wilkerson, Director, Marsteller Ltd., U.K.

"TWA's people give me the feeling that they're real people who have homes, and families, and a sense of humour. They look after one in a very personal way which I greatly appreciate."

Mr. Nicholas G. Bark, F.B.C.S., Managing Director, Control Data Limited, U.K.

"During my frequent trips to the Far East I always take TWA. The in-flight personnel combine professionalism with warmth in a way I highly appreciate."

Mr. Ludovico Sala, Chairman of Omino di Ferro & Martaz S.p.A., Italy.

"I should like to compare TWA's
Ambassador Service with a well-run
Swiss hotel: Everything runs smoothlyfrom making your reservation to saying good-bye. The planes are run with strict tidyness throughout. The guest is king, and the staff haven't forgotten
the art of smiling."

Mr. George Rocco, Proprietor, Silvretta Hotel, Switzerland.

At TWA, we feel that experienced business travellers are the ultimate judges of airline service.

They travel a lat. And if you dan't please them, you lase them.

We're glad to say that a lat of them are pretty pleosed about TWA.

As businessmen, they understand the simple lagic behind TWA's Ambassador Service: give people better value far their money than anybady else, and you end up with many more sotisfied possengers.

They may come aut with wards af praise. Or they may quietly book with TWA again for the next trip.

Either way, it's o goad reason far you to see your travel agent about flying TWA next time.

Many af aur most loyal passengers originally thaught they'd just try us once, far a change.

'Pinafore' Shipwrecked In Germany

By James Helme Sutcliffe K ASSEL, West Germany (IHT).

—Gilbert & Sullivan's "HMS Pinafore" has sailed into the Kassel Staatstheater repertory

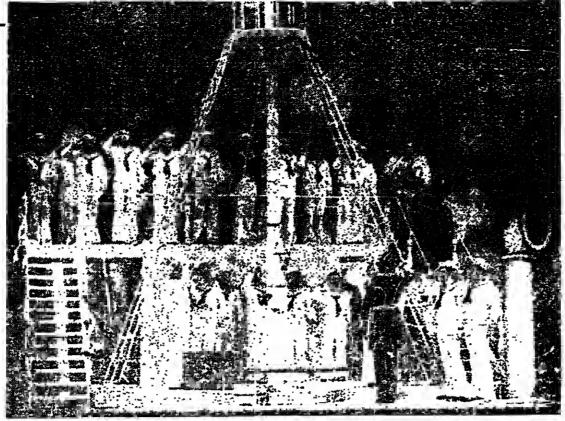

However, this German premiere was shipwrecked from the start with the production team and artists issuing warnings, ostensibly occasioned by the "weak-ness" of the work itself. Kassel's reason for tackling "Pinafore" was intendant Peter Löffler's predilection for G & S in the original and his hope of establishing the Savoy Operas in German theaters as an alternative to the gooey sentimentality of homegrown operetta. In Charles Lewinsky, Löffler had a young Swiss lyricist with a hright hackground in caharet and a way with words particularly attuned to Gilbert's whimsy. His ciever version of "Matrosentiebe" ("Sailor's Love," as "Pinafore" was rechristened) lacked the complete conviction of last year's "Yeomen of the Guard." Still it was a marvelous achievement, internal and end rhymes and all. There is nothing the matter with Werner Schachteli's designs either-delightful, authentically historical costumes in a composite setting which, in picturebook colors, seemed like a cross-section of British institutions. The orcbestra loge, stage right. had been transformed into Sir Joseph's barge which his female relatives rowed with aplomh past a lighthouse to the center-stage paddlewheeler Pinafore, docked close to the Portsmouth bawd; house, vicarage and pub, the Hercules Inn (named after Kassel's baroque architectural wonder), all on stage left. But once the action started, shock set in. The sailors wash themselves not the deck down. Little Buttercup's succulent drops turn out to be Portsmouth whores whose backsides the crew stroke and pat during Ralph's "Night-ingale" hallad, Things get worse. Sir Joseph's barge sinks (to the taped sound of a car crash), forcing his sundry relatives to swim to the ship and strip-to Victorian undies-to be dried off by the crew and made comfortable in deck chairs (which take an age to set up, thus torpedoing the continuity aud. with 1t, audience interest.

Sir Joseph lisps imaking his crucial dialogue unintelligible; until a dead albatross cures him by falling on his head during the Act II finale. Josephine is the ugly-duckling daughter of a yoyo playing, gin-swigging Captain Corcorán (pronounced as if he were French, which would have tickled Gilbert's francophobia.

gags like these smack of musical-hall slapstick, others are in miserable taste: Corcoran hurping drunkenly from his hammock during Josephine's big Act II aria. The flames that appear from below deck for Buttercup/Azunarrative-confession are cena's simply silly.

It seemed as if the director Nikolaus Sulzberg (opera director in Essen from next season) was not too subtly taking his revenge on an administration which forced him to stage a piece that interested him not in the least and whose "British" humor han to be made "comprehensible" for German provincial audience. But even this does not explain his total inability to serve up the dialogue amusingly. Under the circumstances, the cast did as well as it could, with the talents of that brilliant comedian Werner Franz wasted as Sir Joseph. Diete Honig was 2 convincing, lenrous, peg-legged Dick Deadeye. Trude Schumacher, as Euttercup, was evidently the only singer who took her role seriously-her diction was superlative.

The Long-Lived April in Paris Ball

By Hebe Dorsey PARIS, June 10 (IHT).—Charity balls come and go. But the April in Paris ball has survived 23 years, something of a record, and a money-making one.

Since it was founded in 1951 by Elsa Maxwell (of diminntive size but giant social stature) and Claude Philippe (then director of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York), the ball has raised $3 1/2 million for Franco-American charities. The idea grew from a costume ball the two gave in New York in 1950 to celebrate Paris's 2.000th anniversary. With Miss Maxwell spinning around as Marie de Medici, the ball was such a success that the annual April in Paris ball, always held in the Waldorf Astoria's Grand Ballroom, took shape.

Besides raising money for French and American charities, the ball's assets are many. Tax-Deductible

The main, if crass, one is that gifts to charity in the United States are tax-deductible. Another come-on is gigantic hisand-hers gift boxes which make guests feel that, here and there, they get their money back. Finally, the ball continues because there are enough women in Paris and New York with enough time on their hands to give to a cause. The interest has never died down because the April in Paris ball became ideal social entrée.

The April in Paris ball, which is now held in October, has had its ups and downs. The ups included the days when the affair was co-sponsored by both Mrs. Charles de Gaulla and Mrs. Dwight Elsenhower when their

Then the ball, having generated myriads of other, smaller charlty balls, went through a down phase. There were days when people still bought tickets but did not bother to attend.

. But things are picking up again for the April in Paris ball. The French committee, now headed by Princess Edouard de Lobkowicz; has regained social luster. Yesterday, Lady Deterding (of Dutch oil fortune) gave a luncheon in her Louis XV apartment for the French committee, which includes Princess de Polignac, Viscountess de Ribes, Princess d'Arenberg, Andrée de Vilmorin, Maurice Carrère, Simone Karoff and the Marquis d'Earcourt. The younger generation was represented by Maryll Lanvin and Joy de Rohan-Chabot. They all came to help the vice-president, Baroness da Cabrol whose charities have always benefited from the April in Paris ball.

That was followed by an Iranian-Danish fish course-stygian pearls of fresh caviar coupled with graved laz (raw salmon) freshly cured with dill and salt and a touch of sugar and served with a savory dill and mustard sauce.

We had been forewarned by Paul Bocuse about the main course. At a gathering in Manhattan we had the friendly audacity to ask what he would serve as the main course for such an auspicious occasion. He told us prime ribs of beef American style. "You," we assured him, "have got to be kidding." He wasn't.

Iran and the major Italian state holding company have announced an agreement valued et 2,000 billion lire ($3.1 billion) to build a major steel complex at Bandar Abbas, on the Persian Gulf. The work is to be carried out as a joint project between National Iranian Steel Co. and Istituto per la Ricostruzione Industriale (IRI). the state holding company, and its various sub-sidiaries. The project includes development of iron ore mines near Bandar Abbas, construction of a three-million-ton-a-year iron and steel plant, a 500-megawatt electrical-generating plant, a desalination plant to serve the complex and a planned satellite city of 80,000 persons.

U.S. Airlines Show a Profit

The U.S. echeduled airline industry posted net profits of nearly $223 million in 1973 despite fuel shortage problems and the resultant juggling of flight schedules. Figures released by the Air Transport Association show that the number of passengers carried on scheduled flights rose to 202 million last year from 191 million in 1972. Passenger revenues rose by 10.8 percent-from $9.3 billion in 1972 to $10.3 billion in 1973while revenues from freight operations increased from $906 million to just over $1 billion. Operating expenses also were up sharply, from $10.6 billion in 1972 to $11.8 billion last year. leaving net operating income of $584 million and net profits of $222.8 million. The profit from some 30 countries at the BIS annual meeting, Mr. Zijistra said there are no signs that the downturn triggered by the quadrupling of oil prices is going to go further this year:

"On the contrary, the level of activity seems to be well maintained and it would be a mistake to give a major stimulus to total demand by policy measures," he

Thus, the adjustment of our expenditure patterns to the new level of oil prices seems to be proceeding without undue dif-ficulty, now that the initial shock is wearing off."

Inflation, he said, has accelerated to a point at which a government keeping the rate below 10 percent annually "would consider that it was doing rather well." But, he added, the recent weakening of commodity prices made it "reasonable to hope that during the rest of this year we shall get some help from that quarter in reducing the rate of Floating exchange rates, Mr. Zijlstra said, have been a factor boosting inflation. This was partly because of increased import costs for countries with currencies floating downward. More broadly however, floating rates have aggravated the general inflationary psychology by further weakening confidence in money, he explained.

Free floating, the BIS president also warned, was not a cure-all for the huge balance of payments deficits accumulating by the oil-importing countries.

What is needed, he said, is "some measure of international understanding about the exchange rate structure." Besides financing countries payment balanca deficits through private markets, official assistance would be required through the international agencies and directly from government to government

To become eligible for such aid. countries should make "every effort" to eliminate non-oil sources for their balance of payments troubles, the BIS president said.

General monetary reform on the basis of stable but adjustable ex-hange rates is "obviously not practical for some time to come." Mr. Zijlstra said, "However, if we could achieve and maintain some compatibility of countries' exchange rate policies, we would not only lessen the danger of adverse effects on world trade... (but) we would also make a start on what will probably be a long road back to a true international monetary system."

The BIS annual report released today noted the need for a strong U.S. currency as basis of a restored stable monetary order. Signed by BIS general manager René Larre, the report said that when the effort for monetary reform was postponed last January the general view was that floating exchange rates "would be required for the indefinite future."

"Even before its formal postponement, the reform discussions had taken on an air of unreality and seemed stalled on disagree ment about the basic elements of the system and how it ought to function," the report said, and concluded:

"The key to restoring a stable rate system was always a dollar that commanded confidence by its convertibility and the stable monetary conditions which lay behind it.

"This objective needed constructive action on the gold problem and acceptance of some degree of balance-of-payments discipline. But with the international payments situation in its present state of flux, a par value system is prohably not

EUROFINANCING.

Citibank/Europe's unique Eurobanking organization provides European businessmen with large-scale multicurrency financing - frequently as a single source.

Citibank/Europe's lending capacity is one reason why 2 out of 3 European businesses with annual sales of $500 million or more are Citibank/Europe customers. (At the end of 1973, Citibank's worldwide loans outstanding were over $2612 billion.)

Equally important are our creativity and imagination in shaping financing to the needs of individual companies, with requirements just about anywhere in the world.

Citibank/Europe offers a complete spectrum of financing services. The bank itself provides local currency loans and has a highly developed Eurocurrency lending capability. Through our Londonbased merchant bank, Citicorp International Bank Limited, companies have access to an experienced and diversified investment banking facility. And Citicorp Leasing, the world's largest leasing organization, offers comprehensive, contemporary leasing arrangements.

No bank offers a broader scope of services, or greater coverage of the European business community. And to serve your company worldwide, we're part of Citibank's global network of branches, subsidiaries and affiliates.

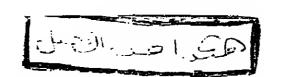

Eurofinancing and Citibank/Europe go together.

The Algerian Democratic and People's Republic Ministry of Industry and Energy Initial Solicitation of International Bids

An important national Algerian enterprise is soliciting international bids for the express purpose of realizing three prefabrication units for buildings to be used for housing.

The principal characteristics are as follows:

- One unit in ALGIERS-REGHAIA.
- One unit in ARZEW.
- One unit in SKIKOA or ANNABA.
- Daily production capacity per unit: 10 to 12 lodgings.
- Material used will be of local origin-- Estimated date of completion: 1977/1978.

Interested individual contractors or groups of contractors should send the following information to: ANEI, 1 Avenue Pasteur, ALGIERS (ALGERIA), Nr. 14,404, before June 30, 1974:

- 1) A list of professional references and of units already completed throughout the world:
- 2) The procedure used or patent worked;
- 3) The nature of the materials used for prefabrication.

The conditions of the contract will be ready toward the end of 1974.

An answer is assured by the Société Nationale Algérienne, sponsor of this announcement, to all contractors sending documentation to the address indicated above.

Are we running out of silver?

Today, an unasual supply-demand situation in silver offers you an opportunity to gain substantial prolits.

For the past 23 years, world silver consumption has exceeded mine prodoction. For each of the past 13 years, the gap has exceeded 100 million nunces.

Lately, the gap has been widening still further. In 1971, consumption exceeded mine production by 133 million nunces. In 1972, by 184 million ounces. And in 1973, consumption surpassed production by more than 234 millinn ounces.

As a result, the world is rapidly running out of available above ground supplies.

Major bull market in silver

When demand for an item consistently exceeds production, we can expect its price to rise. And that's exactly what began to happen in silver, late in 1971. By mid-1972, it was apparent that a major bull market in silver was under way.

By the end of 1972, silver had risen from $1.45 per ounce to $2.02. Yet, despite the sharply higher prices, silver consumption actually grew (up 12.9% from 1971). In 1973, the same pattern emerged: sharply higher adver prices (up to $3.26), along with increosed consumption (up 12% over 1972). So far this year, the price of silver bas broken all previous records.

Is there still time to "cash-in"?

With silver already at record prices, ynn may wonder: Is there still a chance for profits in silver?

We believe so. Of course, on investment is without risk, but we believe the bull market in silver—and your apportunity for profits—is still in the early stage. We'd like in explain why, and suggest a few silver investments we believe will be particularly profitable in the years ahead.

So may we mail you a FREE copy of the new, expanded, Second Edition of The Case for Silver? This free informational bonklet, by Louis E. Carabini, President of the Pacific Coast

- · When to expect the recurring shortfalls in mine production to creare an acute shortage of sliver;
- The unique properties of silver and why it's an essential, unsubstitutable commodity in most applications;
- Why consumption and production of silver are both largely unresponsive to price changes
- · Projections for the price of silver, including timing estimates;
- Why silver is valued as a hedge against inflation and devaluation; Case histories of 4 bad inflotions (including the nightmare runaway milation in post World War I Germany), and how silver fared dur-
- · Four ways to invest in silver: the drawbacks and advantages of each. Which seems in offer the best apportunity to gain both the profits you want and the protection from inflation you need. LADIES AND GENTLEMEN -- LENNY BRUCE! By Albert Goldman from the journalism of Lawrence Schille Illustrated. 565 pp. Random House. $10.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

JUST who exactly was Lenny Bruce—or the Lenny Bruce who emerges from this detailed hiography written by Albert Goldman with the aid of research done by Lawrence Schiller? He was a nightclub comedian who once borrowed a lighted cigarette from the black basketball star Wilt Chamberlain, stared at it in mock astonishment and then confided to his audience an appalling racial slur. (The audience registered shock, Mr. Chamberlain doubled over with laugh-ter, the audience felt free to follow suit.) But he was also a stand-up comic who could blow fresh air through his audience with his coruscating exposure of the hypocrisies of 1950-ish America. He was a narcotics addict who was "busted" repeatedly on suspicion of possession, who beat one rap by "finking" on his connections and who was found dead in 1966 at the age of 40 with a "spike" in his arm and a bathrobe sash tied around his elbow. But he was never sent to jail, he never admitted his addiction, he struck the pose of the persecuted, and at least one of his many devoted friends believed at the end that figuratively speaking. it was the police who had killed him. He was a sniveler and a charmer, a cult hero and a loser. a genius and a jerk.

A self-contradictory figure, to say the very least. A man you could pose in any number of different lights. The quintessence of hipsterism, the white Negro supreme, who aspired to raise street culture to the level of high art. The underground man incarnate, out of sight in the Eisenhower years, who came up-stairs to haunt us when the lid came loose from the fifties. The ultimate schlemiel, "who is rec-ognized in the Jewish world as a necessary companion to the ray and the wiseman," as Mr. Goldman puts it. All these roles you could lay on Lenny Bruce, and work up heavy theses.

But what is impressive about "Ladies and Gentlemen—Lenny Bruce!" is that Mr. Goldman has refused to mount a hobbyhorse. Instead he has given us Lenny Bruce in all his many guises — showman, jazzman, hipster and whore; liar, fink and junkie; genius, rebel, artist and hero. Instead, he begins by offering us "A Day in the Life" of Mr. Bruce at the peak of his career, and the chapter is by turns so shocking funny and frightening that we forget that it is a reconstruction, and we forgive him for new-journalizing. Then he runs through Mr. Bruce's brief life and the details are so compelling that they carry us through the few dead spots where Mr. Goldman falls back on "and-then-this-happened" style, of narrative, and we forgive him his occasional preoc-

But what is most extraordinal about Mr. Goldman's biograph is the sense he conveys of simu taneous involvement in M Bruce's life and objectivity abou its meaning. Mr. Goldman he long been fascinated with the world and personality of Lenr Bruce (and that fascination h now drawn him far from h profession as a professor of E glish and far from the scholar subjects of his early books). It vents his obsession by adoptiv a highly informal, novelistic sty -a style that often reads as it had been written by a Yiddis Tom Wolfe-and chameleonlik this style seems to place M Goldman on the most intima:

Yet he never completely loss himself in Lenny Bruce's world the point of view suggested this swinging unbuttoned prosometimes seems to merge wit Mr. Bruce's the points of h anecdotes always return us critical judgment. One examp may serve to illustrate. Mr. Gol man seems to smile with approv oo the close friendship that Le ny Bruce developed late in h life with Phil Specter, the m lionaire rock-music entrepreneu He seems pleased with M Specter for being the one exce-tion of all the pop-culture sta-of the sixties who failed to a preciate what Lenny Bruce has meant to the fifties. It takes seven rounds to win at Wimbledon, three at Dallas, and the smaller aumber is usually an agrantage to an older pinyer. A.k. Ken Rosewall, who will be 40 in Not ember and who won the tournament in 1972 and 1973.

The argument that the matches are lougher because the class is better in the abbreviated Danas oran is as weak as Francoise Dura's second service. The first, second and turn rounds of the seven rounds necessary to win Wimbledon are sometimes too tough for some of the eight seeded Winibicdon men-

The dilution of championship quality is assent worse in the socalled double, world championships, such as the Rothman's World Doubles in Montreal in early May.

Like the Dallas World Championship of Tennis, the Rothmans World Doubles is a closed fournament. The eight pairs qualify by getting enough points in the Red, Blue and Green

Since deciding late in 1963 to live in South Africa, he has enhanced his doubles repute in combination most of the time with McMillan. But the runners-up-Newcombe and DBndson-are not a world-

In French Open Kodes, Ashe Eliminated

PARIS, June 10 (IHT),-The icao Julie Heldman, West Ger-French Open tennis championship lost two of its top seeds

The tournament, drawing poorly because of poor weather, must now do without No. 2-seed Jan Modes of Czechoslovakia and American Arthur Ashe. Ashe, seeded third, was bearen by Spaniard Manuel Orantes. 6-1, 6-2, 6-2, in a fourth-round match which only lasted 80 minutes. Orantes was later joined in the quarterlinels by Frenchman François Jauliret, who beat Kodes, a two-loday but found a local attrac-time winner here, 7-6, 7-5, 7-5. The Kodes-Jauffret match was played under the lights at the eod of a cold oud chilly day on the slow clay courts of Roland Garros, B stadium where Kodes usually excels, But Jeuffret, a lcan Frenchman, rewarded the crowd which stayed around tonight until about 9 p.m. by win-ning the big points.

In women's play, Chris Evert, the top-seed, had an easy maich, routiog Spain's Victoria Baldorinos 6-2, 6-2. Also moving into the quarterfinals were Amer-

Hans Jurgen Pohmann of West Germany gained the quarterfinals by eliminating American Eddle Dibbs, 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

Green Increases Golf Earnings

WHITEMARSH, Pa., June 10 NYT:.-Huble Green increased his 1974 golf earnings to $156,165 by picking up the winner's check for $30,000 in the IVB-Phila-delphia Classic yesterday after shooting a record 17-under-par 271 fer the 72-hole affair. He had a final-round 68.

But he is still far back of Johnny Miller in the money winnings as Miller, who finished in a tie for third, became the first golfer to win more than $200,300 this early in the year. Miller shot a par 72 Bt the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club yesterday for 277, good enough to earn $8,850 boost his 1974 total to $203,356.

Impeaching Congress

Cheeseoip, how do you feel about the Watergate affair?" "I am shocked, appalled and horrified that such a thing could happen in this great land of ours."

"What is Congress doing to prevent future Watergates from taking place?"

"We are studying the matter very closiv."
"Do you believe there is any pos-sibility that the will serious electionreform legislation "I didn't under-

"Congressman Cheesedip, what I meant was that, although most members of the House are very critical of every aspect of Watergate, they seem to be dragging their feet when it comes to making elections in this country less corrupt."

"I will not accept that. We have been thinking about eleclion reform for some time now. We have been talking about it for over a year. How can you say we're dragging our feet?"
"Mainly because you haven't done anything." "Well, I would like to say this, Reforming election campaigns is a very serious matter. We have to look at it from all sides. It's

Red Tape Delays Panov Departure

MOSCOW, June 10 (UPI) — Ballet star Valery Proov sald today that he and his ballerina wife. Galina, have had to delay their departure for Israel until Priday because of bureaucratic 50ags in obtaining exit visas.

Mr. Panov, 35, fired from the Kirov Ballet in Leningrad when he applied to emigrate in 1972, went to the visa office in Leningrad today to collect the visas he was promised Saturday.

But he said in a telephone interview later that officials told him that more paperwork was needed and he would get the visas Wednesday, The couple originally were ordered to leave the country oo later than Thursday.

WASHINGTON.—"Congressman true that there bave been abuses. particularly in the area of financing political candidates, and we're very concerned about this. At the same time it would be a mistake if we abolished these abuses and made it more difficult for men of high principle

"I am not against election retorms. I take the position—and I have said this publicly many times that we need to have reforms in our political process. But I believe it would be a very dangerous thing to pass any laws that would make it more difficult for well-meaning people to contribute to a political campaign. Their voices should be heard and if they want to do it by financing a particular candidate, theo I say God bless them. That's the American way of doing things." "But isn't that the very thing that got the Committee to Rc-Elect the President in all its trouble?"

"I don't think we should be tarred by what the Committee to Re-Elect the President did. I am proud to say that, although I have received contributions from the milk producers, the oil companies and the construction in-dustries. I have never permitted this to interfere io how I would rote on any particular bill. Every congressman on this hill feels the same way. If we didn't, we would, of course, ask for stronger

Lonely and Full of Hate, She Joined the Nazi Party

By Lacey Fosburgh

SAN FRANCISCO (NYT).—There are certain things Sandra Silva likes and certain things she hates.

She likes, for instance, "discipline and a well-ordered life," warfare, the military and Hitler. And she hates, to list a few, blacks, Jews, minorities, Communists, "troublemakers" lanyone who threatens white supremacy, and the prospect of "wasting time."

Sandra Silva is a member of the local chapter of the American Nazi party. And, as a 20-year-old clerk in the Police Department, she has become the unlikely focus of a citywide controversy about the rights of those who belong to unpopular organizations-like the Nazis-to rally, speak at public meetings, wear uniforms and even hold city jobs.

The stern-faced woman bas become a key element in a dispute over freedom of choice and ideas that has pitted the Nazis, the American Civil Liberties Union and the Roman Catholic archdiocese, among others, against prominent members of the Board of Supervisors, the Board of Education, the Jew-War Veterans, leaders of the black community, and significantly, many traditional local liberals.

There are many points of conflict, but two of the main issues are whether Miss Silva should be forced to change jobs because her Nazi affiliation might damage what the Police Department describes as its "sensitive image" and whether Nazis should be barred from wearing their brown uniforms in public.

After months of heated controversy, it appears that Miss Sliva, protected by civil service rules, the ACLU and the Nazis, will be able to keep her S514-a-month job and that the uniform ban will oot be passed.

The situation began last December when members of the Nazi party, in existence here for seven years, but rarely in public, began to attend school board meetings and speak out against integration and busing.

The resulting publicity, said Mat Koehl, the 39-year-old president of the National Socialist White People's party (the official name of the Nazi party), has made San Francisco the most prominent chapter in the country. There are about 39 others, he said.

Although "official policy" forbids disclosure of the number of members anywhere, approximately 25 to 30 brown shirts invariably attend Nazi railies here. And the one who was first publicly identified was Sandra Sifva of the Police Department.

After more than a month of refusing to be interviewed, the young woman finally agreed to talk in a public restaurant, under the cooditioo that she be accompanied by Allen Vincent, the local chapter president, and Mr. Koehl. He was in town for a rally in honor of Rudolf Hess, the Nazi war criminal. The three arrived, with a tape recorder, and Miss Silva explained how she became a Nazi and why a complete dedication to the party has usurped, for her, any other kind of life. Miss Silva, for example, has never had a date, never had a drink, doesn't want to get married and did oot, according to an official at the Police Department, utter one word during her first eight months at work

Miss Sliva said she did not become a Nazi or a white supreotacist, that in fact she had always heen ooe. As a child, she said, "I didn't understand why, but I always felt this dislike for blacks. They disgusted me . . . they were always causing trouble,"

Asked if any specific childhood experience or series of eveous aroused this hatred in her, she said oo, but that she had attended a largely black elementary school where her dislike grew and grew.

Her attitude, were ourtured, she conceded, by the atmosphere at home where her father, then a policeman, now a probation officer, and her mother, both believed in whita

In 1964, when Miss Silva was 10, her parents left San Francisco to escape the black population and moved into a middle class white suburb south of here where she was confronted for the first time with "Jews, liberals and commies." It's here that she began to decide, she said, that such groups were responsible for all problems in the world-including, she said, inflatioo, rising population and the vanishing wilderness. Her belief in white supremacy steadily grew as she became more and more disturbed by the "garbage" that was "destroying" Americao society.

At school she first became fascinated with Nazi Germany and the military and grew to worship Hitler because, she said, he understood the true problems facing society.

It was with "a great sense of relief," however, that io 1971, at 17, she discovered that a neo-Nazi party existed. She joined immediately.

Asked how she could recoocile her beliefs with the Nazi atrocttles committed during World War II, she said it was very easy. Echoing comments made by both Mr. Viocent and Mr. Koehl, she said: "I read all about the myth of the six million and it's a known fact six million Jews could not have been killed by the Nazis. That wasn't their philosophy. People seem to believe their philosophy was genocide, but it wasn't."

Mr. Koehl, who scoffed at all suggestion of possible Nazi atrocities against the Jews, observed that the majority of the party members were oow in their mid-30s and had little or no personal recollection of World War II.

In 1972, after she had graduated from high school and went to work for the Police Department ("because there you get a better class of people . . . no hlacks or Jews"), her involvement with the party intensified.

"I stay home all the time and I don't go out at all," sho said. Five nights a week, for example, she does "party work" like addressing envelopes and mailing literature in her bedroom io the white house where she lives with her parents, Saturdays she attends party meetings and Sundays she's at home.

All the time Miss Silva talked, Mr. Koehl, who never smiled, and Mr. Vincent listeoed intently. The tape recorder turned and occordy touched the plate of roast beef sandwiches. Mr. Koehl, who said he makes "less than $25 a week" and took over the presidency when former president George Lincolo Rockwell was slain in 1967, was excessively nervous, scratching his head and twitching his mustache.

He perked up only occasionally at Miss Silva's remarks. He seemed to particularly like it wheo, asked what she did for "fun," Miss Silva said: "Anything to do with the Nazi party is fun,"

The only living child of Booker T. Washington, Portia Marshall Washington Pittman, celebrated her 91st birthday last week in Washington. She was also celebrating the publication of "Booker Ta Child," a book about her memories written by Roy Hill, an assistant professor of English at Rutgers. "My parents were very happy together," she said, "but it lasted only such a brief time. My mother was just a girl when she died—so young, 26 years old... They said my father allost his mind when she died ... " She was born at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, about two years after her father founded it. Her interests were in music
—she studied at Wellesley College and in Berlin under Martin Krause, who had been a pupil of Franz Liszt. She later taught music at Tuskegee. During the party, when she was asked to give a message to black people, she said: "Cultivate what you have, you have so much to of-
